Dear Richard,

Dorothy Rowe wrote you had compiled a family history which tweeks my interest. I'm in the process of trying to organize my "Doughty stuff" into something that will make sense to my kids.

As you can see by my chart my interest in your family begins at the point where my dad's sister, Hettie married Binney Dibble.

Bob Dibble spent a half dozen summers working on the Milaca, MN farm of his g.father Asa & my dad Richard (Dick). He had a close relationship with Dad & after Dad died I continued writing to Bob and as I gathered family information I sent it on to Bob & he kept me informed of his life & family. BUT - I have very little material on his parents' & brothers' lives.

You can see where I'm heading, can't you? It would be great to have any additions you would care to make to my pile.

The enclosed letter your g. grandmother wrote to her parents & Dad is one that never made it into my shoebox file of letters to Asa & Melissa Doughty. I'm sure (well, almost) that I sent Bob several pages of excerpts from letters written by Hettie to her parents. If you don't have them, I think I still have an extra copy you may have.

I'm using this notebook as a lap desk because after 6 weeks of diving around we aren't sufficiently settled in our new town house for me to have my desk in order.

If you wonder how Hettie could be my aunt - Dad was the baby of his family & I of mine. I'm really a generation removed from most of my 1st cousins. They were all such nice people but I wasn't well acquainted with most, however, most of the family reunions in the past have been at my house since I've had the room & the interest. Even now, on this last (& I do mean last) move I made sure there would be room to entertain.

Would be delighted to hear from you.

Sincerely,
Joyce Doughty Wold

Dear Richard!

I was delighted to receive your packet of family history especially since the packaging was in shreds and shedding its stuffing all around. Even though one end was torn off I do believe the inside material was all intact and in good condition.

In time I will sit down and mesh your material into mine to pad out the history I have already assembled. Thank you for the time and expense you devoted in my behalf.

Now I am going to clear the dining table of Doughty stuff and replace it with Wold. I can, I think, complete a Wold history in time to give it to our kids for Christmas. It was obviously not possible to do that with the Doughty line. If I hadn't spent about 6 months of this year getting ready to move and then living out of suitcases for 6 weeks and then reassembling everything here, I think I might have managed.

Another problem--my sister's 2 daughters have most of my most historical Doughty material. They approached me last summer asking if they could help me get organized into a history for themselves and their kids, so I gave each a packet of several generations to condense into a few pages. Obviously, they didn't know what an undertaking that would be. I WAS organized, it was just a matter of distilling the most pertinent information from the rest. So, I'm sorry that I can't pass much on to you because I don't have it myself. They are both such bright hard working ladies I thought they would follow through, but I should have known that their priorities are different than mine and while I can trust myself to do what I've committed myself to that is often not the case. I really wish I hadn't parted with my one-of-a-kind highly researched material.

Many years ago (35?) I was urged to join the DAR. So I spent quite a few days at the MN Historical Sociaty reading room in ST.Paul. Each generation back to my Revolutionary War ancestor had to be verified by DAR approved documentation. At the same time I had a large section of Doughty geneology pages copied. So I have what I consider our line worked backward to Rev. Francis Doughty who arrived in this country in the 1630's. He was a contemporary of Peter Stuyvesant and a friend of Lord Baltimore.

I have a photo of Samuel Doughty's headstone that was incorporated into the foundation of a Methodist Church on Long Island when that church expanded into the old cemetery,

If all goes well, I intend to buy a computer after the first of the year with scanning and copying capabilities. Then, I shall insist on getting my material back. While all our things were in storage it didn't make a lot of difference where they were, but now I want them back!

Hettie was listed in her parent's family bible as Hetta. Until I started doing research I didn't know her husband had a name other than Birney because that's how he was known by the family and how he was called by Hettie and how he signed himself on letters.

I am giving you the sweet little note that I've enclosed that was written by your grandfather Paul Dibble to his uncle (my father) Richard Doughty. It was enclosed in one of his mother's letters to her parents. It's over 90 years old and should go to someone who who will continue to protect it.

Somewhere, in bad condition, I have a copy of the Methodist magazine with James Birney and his great grandsons on the cover. At one point in it's life it must have gotten damp enough so that some of the colored ink brushed off onto something else.

Does the material that you received from Frank Springer start out "Being aware that many families have lost their geneologies for want of attention at the right time etc?" If not, it may be something I don't have and perhaps the pages I have are something you would like to have.

Do keep in touch. It's always a joy to communicate with someone who likes to sift through old records.

I have a copy of the note Grandfather Asa's father wrote giving him permission to enlist in the Union Army. It is still on file at the Naional Archives. I also have the small telescooe he carried during the war and a faded old pennant and a New Testament that he brought back as souvenirs when he went to the 50th Anniversary encampment held at Gettysburg.

Moving into a new home would not have been so difficult if I had not carried my own and scraps of other people's lives with me. For example, when I was a very little girl my father carried a rock up to the house because it was different from the other field rocks. It was special to him, so after 60 years I'm still hauling that rock around. This might be a good time to mention that I have a sweet, long-suffering, husband of 50 years who is willing to carry his father-in-laws rock.

Sincerely -

Joyce

Dear Richard:

Here are some sheets to start with. Lewis Doughty has sent me a lot of material, but I have not entered all of the names into my program. These Drafts Lewis sent me are sometimes hard to read. I do not know which program he uses. I descend from Alice DOUGHTY, who married Henry COLEMAN. I will enclose one of my charts.

I was glad Lewis answered the e-mail. As he is still working we haven't corresponded much in the last few years.

I did not see where Asa's line was extended, but Lewis said he had some information on the DIBBLES. I had never seen that name listed on his charts.

Good luck on your research.

There is incoming mail from Margaret Heron James. After I read it and catch up on a lot I owe others and some material I want to send to WI for the August Reunion, I'll get back to you. I'm not sure how much information I have on Dibble forbears. Lawrence Cronk and some Dibbles, particularly one in Arizona, were my sources, so most of what I have on collateral relatives is family tradition and proved only to the extent that immediate families provided proof. In most cases that was little or none. What I find, I'll share. The proof back to Henry Nelson for individuals outside my own line is pretty much the job of those concerned. The proof back to Henry Sampson from Henry Nelson and the proof back to Thomas Nelson are pretty well established. I guess I did not reply to this one.
Yes, I was on the 1937 Tree which probably should show George, not Jacob, as father of Samuel who m. 2nd Elizabeth Nelson. (I still do not know whether first wife was Hannah Tatterson who married a Samuel) My Line from them is Samuel, Calvin Mott, Samuel Lewis (my Dad) then me, Samuel Lewis and brother Robert Smith Doughty, I don't think I have your Santa Ana address but if I did I could send some hardcopy information usable for revising your very impressive chart in the earlier generations -- getting rid of the Wheelock and Dummer references for example. There's some fairly decent information even if it's unproved IGI on www.familysearch.org. Do you have the who, when, what, why, where, how, source info on each of the entered names? That's my stumbling block. I get so much info without even an indication as to which century is involved much less places, education, religious affiliation, occupation, interests and all the other material necessary to provide a history.

I'll have considerable material for you but don't know how much you want. The 1937 chart had about 1760 names and I have something over 12,000. No, not all of mine is sourced or proved!!

Had you heard that Edwin X. Doughty d 18 Jul 99 and was bur in Arkansaw on 24 Jul? Barbara Anderson of Colorado informed me.

More later. Lewis

Your recent message points up my main problem. I've settled for what I've received. Your branch of the family, and most collaterals i.e. those not in my direct line, have given as little as you found on the 1937 graph. For example, I was born 16 Jan 1920, Tempe, Maricopa, AZ; m 28 Mar 1942, Concord, Merrimack,NH; Elizabeth Carroll Nason, b 13 Feb 1919, Littleton, Grafton, NH; (she is our cousin (my eighth) on the Rowley, MA, Nelson Line) we met while I was a graduate student at Harvard and she was finishing her training at Boston Children's Hospital that has since been renamed: Children's Medical Center, Boston, MA. and no longer has a School of Nursing.
My father, Samuel Lewis Doughty, b 6 May 1871, St. Cloud, Stearns, MN; (had younger brother, Harvey, who d before 1880 census) m (abt)14 Dec 1913, Billings, Yellowstone, MT; Caroline (Carrie) Veatrice Smith, b 4 May 1888, Baxter Springs, Cherokee, KS. My brother Robert Smith Doughty was born 2 Feb 1924, Southside Hospital, Mesa, Maricopa, AZ. Betty and I have five children and three grandchildren.
I have a modest amount of information for you. Show two children. One, Christine, b and d same day, if my source was correct. I think all I have on your branch came from your mother. (Bear with me: I'm doing this from memory. My data is a few miles away!!)
Your questions re: documentation, pictures, etc. has to receive a negative reply. The only source of pictures I had for the branches including yours was from Lawrence Cronk of Menomonie (sp?) WI. I've lost touch. As in so many cases, my last letter wasn't answered and I don't know status: alive/well/competent???
There is a lot of material. I have thousands of pages in rough draft which I may never finalize. I'll select some material and send it soon.
By the way: the middle name of the various Asa Doughtys was Byram for a neighboring Long Island Family.

Christine's data was included in that which was sent to me years ago. I don't know a rule for inclusion/exclusion. My older, unnamed brother, was stillborn but certificates of birth and death, both with the same date, exist and I have them. He was one of Mother's three pregnancies and I retain him in my charts. I guess the whole thing boils down to preference and to agreement with the compiler. Until now I had no doubt about using the data since I had it from a family source.

Peg: Thank you for taking care of the picture for Richard Porowski. That was all I had of Edward & Phoebe, I believe. I'm sure the loyal source was Lawrence Cronk -- have lost touch with Lawrence and Doris.

Thanks for what appears to be Carol's address. I'm testing it with this and I'm sure she'll let me know. I've already misplaced Barbara Anderson's address. She was the first to let me know of Edwin's passing, 18 Jul 99, and I wanted to get back to her.

Dennis Doughty sent me the notice of the Arkansaw 22 Aug 99 reunion. I wish I could attend but am on a tightly scheduled project and cannot even go for the weekend. I sent some charts to last year's chair person and had some updates from only one although I received work that others would be doing the same thing. I've sent the Descendants of Edward to Dennis. It was descendants of Henry last year.
People there probably do not know about the Kimbrough - Curtis connection even though they wre Henry descendants too. Spragues, Rhinehaarts, Bostwicks, and other "married outs" are not known to those who haven't studied the charts. All the families appear on Ruth Doughty's chart but in somewhat appreviated form. That chart totalled about 1760 names and I have something over 12000 and I'm lacking almost an entire generation as you know.

Did I copy you with the sad news about Ruth Byington Doughty. She followed Edwin just 13 days later according to the Durand obituary sent to me by Dennis Doughty

Do you know our common ancestry with William Howard Taft's from our mutual Thurstons?. Our fhayers/Nelsons are our connection back to the Thurstons. I just reestablished the lines with additional data. I'll set up the chart and send it if there is an interest My children are collaterals of Fillmore and Pierce on Betty's side. Of course Betty has 19 eligibilities for DAR versus my five for SAR, 3 on the Doughty side and 2 on the Selover line. The latter two livee about 20 miles from here in Old Bridge, Middlesex County. The other three were all from Worcester County, Mass and were in fact three generations of Nelsons.

William C. Doughty of Nesconset, NY just sent me some infoormation which looks like something I contributed to the Doughty Family Tree. I'll have to check some of my earlier copy of Clarence "Duke" Doughty's publication.

Thanks again for all your help.

I'm copying several to deliver info of possible interest.

Have fun. I'll be in touch with all those I cc'd on this. Thanks again all helpers. Lewis

I'm sorry that in trying to include a lot of descriptive material, the font became so small. I'm not trying to increase the incomes of the ophthamological folks singlehandedly!

That 36 pages of Rev. Edward descendants info is just a draft and for use in bringing the matter to completion. I do need changes and additions. When I have asked for more complete information about our co-descendants, I was really asking for biographical material. In most cases, as you will see in the Rev. Edward outline, I have names and seldom the places, dates and other absolutely minimal material. Bring on the Biographies, please. Very important too: Sources.
If you have any screen names of relatives on the net, I'd certainly appreciate getting them. Of the 4000+ Doughty names from one of the search engines, a very few had on-line addresses.
I wonder how the Arkansaw picnic went and how much genealogical material will result this year. A lot of the joy will have gone out of the gathering this year with the very recent passing of Ruth and Edwin who really gave the Doughty Family History effort its start over 60 years ago. When I must stop, I hope the material will not lack more than the most recent generation. It certainly does now.

Do you have any interest in how the the descendants of Henry Nelson are collateral relatives of President Taft? I'll include you on the mailing list when I type the chart from John Thurston down. And many of us for many years thought we had no appreciable New England background.

A Rev. Francis Doughty descendant, William C. Doughty, of Nesconset, LI, NY, derived some material from "Long Island Families" (not exact title just from memory) which seems to prove my 23 year old or older theory that our first Samuel got his first name from his maternal grandfather, Samuel Dox(s)ey and that his father was George and His ggf was Jacob. Some cousins have denied, or at least not agreed with, my theory. Samuel Doxey's will, on file in Queens, NY, might help in further proof but I haven't investigated enough. Bill referred to and may have been responding to my Doughty Family Tree inquiry which I have repeated every few years with his being the first response which wasn't asking me for information rather than providing some. I don't know how I missed Bill's source in my visits to LI Historical Society, NY Historical society and the NY Public Library as well as to the former M.E. Church where gggf Samuel was buried in Lawrenceville. His marble stone is almost illegible and when the church was enlarged was placed in the foundation. He was the first to be buried in that churchyard, the land for which he and Rev. Edward gave.

I'm glad you opened your email. Sometimes I go for long intervals without looking for mail and I always regret delaying finding something very worth while. Best to all.

Henry Samson came on the Mayflower with Edward and Ann Tilley who brought their "cousins" Henry Samson and Humility Cooper.
In 1637 Henry Samson was one of the volunteers to fight against the Pequot Indians. The Pequots were defeated before the Plymouth Colony troops were needed.

1 Henry Samson was a Freeman before 7 March 1636/7, prob. in 1635. Henry Samson was in the 1643 list of Duxbury men able to bear arms. On 5 June 1667 and 3 June 1668 he was elected to be Receiver of the Excise Tax in Duxbury.

I have occasion to use snail mail from time to time and need William C. Doughty's mailing address to get my Sprague information to him. I've lacked the skill to use the E-Mail to get an attachment on its way. Some of my attachments would be excessively long.

Dear Richard,

Received your e-mail and would have responded on same if I had your e-mail address. My find people search didn't help, though I find that it usually doesn't.

I'm not exactly working on the Doughty line right now, though I would have sent you our Mayflower line since I had mailed it out to someone else today and it was right at hand.

My plans are to get back to the Doughtys sometime in October. Right now I'm finishing up my Christmas gift to our kids and a couple of the older grandkids of a Wold history. It's loose leaf form and so far there's about 150 pages. To complete the books I intend to add several more pages of more up-to-date pictures at the granddaughters' request. They would like pictures of their dad and the rest of the family in their growing up years.

I tthink my grandfather, Rev. Edward Doughty, has thousands of decendants and I doubt you want all of them. I am not going to burden my family with them all. I plan on starting with Rev. Francis in the early 1600's in New York and follow the line down to my family by picking out our direct ancestor in each generation.

Even though I started the Wold family back to Don's g. grandfather and so am not covering a great deal of territory, if I were to include all of his descendants it would run into hundreds of pages of people my kids will never see or care about. My own personal Wold history contains about 350 pages and is not very interesting to me. My preference is biography. I like to know about people and not just columns of names and dates.

As far as old Doughty pictures, I don't have a lot, but intend to bribe some relatives to send me some I don't have.

I understand we have some sort of relationship with President Taft and have been promised a copy of that material.

If you send me your e-mail address I can throw in a letter every now and then while working on things. It's late and I have no stuff at hand.

Sincerely,
Joyce

Dennis: Addressing your mail to doughty@agi.com was not very successful. I had tried to send a courtesy copy to you at the wrong address. Maybe "sgi" will be more successful.

When you have a chance I hope you and/or other attendees will bring me up to date on the reunion. I'm still unrealistically hoping that those whose families' info has become incomplete will send me the updates their information deserves. I hope also for a longer list of relatives who are on-line.

I still have never been told whether Royal Herbert Doughty, Lawrence and Doris Cronk and many others are still living. Besides lacking the bare facts, I still lack the biographical and the Ws regarding most. Dates, places, correctly spelled names, religious and fraternal affiliation, avocations, occupation, military service are but a few of the customarily missing material on the Henry, Edward and other charts. What kind of urging is required?

I hope that as a component of the list of attendees which I customarily am sent there will be addresses and the name of the child of Samuel and Elizabeth Nelson Doughty from whom each is descended. Henry and Edward are the principal ones for that reunion.

Did the Rev. Edward 36 pages get to you before the event? It was still DRAFT but had information most would have lacked.

Have a great holiday weekend. Our best to you and yours.

Dear Richard:

Here are the pictures. I thought they came out pretty good. I had some samples of photo paper that came with the Epson printer. This is the first time I had used it. The picture of Edward looks like the same one used on his history of the Doughty family. I wish all of our ancestors could have written a story like that.

I keep studying the Chart you sent. I recognize some of the names, but have not put them in my files. I think Lewis must have them all, as he has over 2000 names, I think he said.

I am spending a little more time on our genealogy, but have much to learn.
I will print out your picture and put in the book.

Best to you,

Peg

Subject: Have your e-mail address in book

Dear Richard.
Here's the Mayflower line minus some dates and places. I still have the first part of the material handy unlike most of the Doughty stuff that is put away or at the homes of one of my sister's daughters.

HENRY SAMSON
born Henlow, Co. Bedford, England 15 Jan. 1603/4
died Duxbury 24 Dec. 1684
Henry Samson came on the Mayflower with Edward and Ann Tilley who brought their "cousins" Henry Samson and Humility Cooper.
In 1637 Henry Samson was one of the volunteers to fight against the Pequot Indians. The Pequots were defeated before the Plymouth Colony troops were needed.
Henry Samson was a Freeman before 7 March 1636/7, prob. in 1635. Henry Samson was in the 1643 list of Duxbury men able to bear arms. On 5 June 1667 and 3 June 1668 he was elected to be Receiver of the Excise Tax in Duxbury.
STEPHEN SAMSON
died Duxbury before 31 Jan. 1714/5 when his widow was appointed administratrix/
ELIZABETH SAMSON
born probably Duxbury living in Bellingham 19 March 1762
married Jonathan Thayer 21 Feb. 1722/3 at Duxbury
Jonathan Thayer, physician of Bellingham, and his wife Elizabeth sold land in Bellingham on 19 Sept 1740. Elizabeth Samson (undoubtedly the mother of Elizabeth) was a witness.
Elizabeth Thayer
b. Bellingham 25 June 1735
d. Milforn 29 Oct. 1806
m. 25 April 1754 Mendon to Josiah Nelson
Josiah Nelson was a Minute Man at Lexington ended Rev. War military service as a lieutenant
HENRY NELSON
b. 20 June 1754
Minute Man at Lexington, served with Washington ar Valley Forge, ended military career as a lieutenant.
ELIZABETH NELSON
m Samuel Doughty
EDWARD DOUGHTY The Reverand
m Phebe Smith
ASA DOUGHTY
m. Melissa Hallock
HETTA DOUGHTY
m Bernie Dibble

For a minute I thought I had lost this letter and was ready to close down for the night.

A cousin once counted the Minute Men at Lexington that were related to us and came up with quite a number. Any time you want to look it up check the names Nelson, Thayer and Chapin (the maiden name of Josiah Nelson's mother.

Proof from Henry Samson to Henry Nelson comes from HENRY SAMSON of the Mayflower and his Descendants for Four Generations, Published by General Society of Mayflower Descendants 1995, and the research that I did and that was accepted by the DAR proving my line back to Henry Nelson. Both sources are considered authentic.

Subject: About Elizabeth Thayer

Dear Richard,

Just got home from a meeting and it is too early to start dinner so I'm playing with my mail. Well, it wouldn't be too early to start dinner if I planned on preparing a banquet, but since I just have to cook some spaghetti to go with the sauce I made the other day, there is no hurry.

Your question about Elizabeth's parentage is interesting because now that I think about it I may just have the same information, in another location, that you have. However, the updated booklet that I referred to, and which I have only a copy of the pages of interest to myself, says:

In several references, Elizabeth, wife of Josiah Nelson, is stated to be daughter of Ebenezer and Mary (Wheelock) Thayer; this is negated in the TAG reference. End of quote.

I don't know what is meant by the TAG reference. Since I have only a partial booklet, the relative who sent it included cover and only the pages of interest to be, I don't know if the booklet explains the meaning.

Since this is seemingly the accepted genealogy of the Mayflower Society, I'm willing to go along with that. I don't have any better source for Elizabeth's ancestry. I have long since exhausted the material at the Mn St Hist Soc and am apt to follow the path of least resistance. If something involves more than just so much effort, I leave it alone. Sometimes the answer will come.

Rev. Edward Doughty wrote a 30 some page history of the family (typed, double-spaced). Do you have a copy? I looked for mine, but obviously, it is with the material that is visiting elsewhere. It will come back, or I'll find another copy somewhere. Goodness knows, that over the years I have given enough other people copies so that it will show up. This has taught me a lesson. I shall never again permit my stuff out of the house even to well-meaning trust worthy people, because I just hate not to be able to lay my hands on what I want. I'm not telling my nieces how bothered I am because they mean well and I will get my stuff back, but I would have been better off keeping it and working on it myself no matter how slowly.

I could have answered your query in a few sentences, instead I wrote you a book.

Keep in touch
Joyce

Subject: Re: Fw: Nelson family

This very welcome contribution adds to what I had. I suspected some that is given as fact. We still don't have the identity of Lt. Henry Nelson's 2nd wife, apparently.
I have the National Genealogical Society reference on the Bounty Land Warrant for which Henry, Jr. applied decades after his father's death. It has the references to the first and second families. But the reference is in my file at home.
Also there and not here are the addresses for cousins Barbara Anderson in Colorado and Ralph Lang in Wichita, both of whom would be delighted to get dchase's offering. Thanks to Carol for having published the inquiry.
If any of you have valid on-line addresses for other cousins, please let me know.
You all know of the direct line reference from the Society of Mayflower Descendants for fifth generation Henry Nelson to Henry Samson. It's in one of their Works in Progress books and I'd be glad to send copies of pertinent pages to anyone else working that route, particularly since it confirms the searching I did in the early 60s with the help of the Ravenscroft research which I found at the Rhode Island Historical Society.
To dchase. I have done a bit of research on a NASON line, while not on Lewis certainly on the Maine and NH line of my wife Elizabeth Carroll NASON DOUGHTY. I have a serious stopper on that line around 1790. I can't get past Joseph father of Nehemiah. While I found his burial place in the Chatsworth Cemetery not far from Alfred, Maine, I only found one authentic identifier as Nehemiah's father and that was in a quitclaim deed from Nehemiah to one of his sons.

Enough for now Thanks again to all the . Lewis.

Alice Doughty Coleman
And Her Family

By Jessie F. Clapp
July 1939

Alice Doughty was born February 12, 1815 at Far Rockaway, Long Island, New York, to Samuel and Elizabeth (Nelson) Doughty and was somewhere near the middle of their large family of thirteen children, as their oldest child, Henry, was born 1803, and the youngest Ester, in 1827.

Alice Doughty grew up in her native village. Her older brother Edward, who was learning a trade in Orange County, New York, had a close friend there at Cornwall-on Hudson, Henry Coleman. It was but natural that Henry and Alice should meet. Their acquaintance ripened into love and in 1834, when she was 19 and he, 22, they were married.

From this time onward, Alice's and Henry's lives were so closely knit together that any record of either must include the other. Their first home seems to have been at Belport, Long Island, where the young Henry was Postmaster for a few years. Here their first two children were born, and perhps also the third child, who died in infancy.

About 1836 there was much talk of the opportunities in the Middle West and many families were leaving the east to settle in Ohio, Indiana, or Illinois. Edward Doughty and Henry Coleman were among those who became convinced of the better advantages in the West, and in 1838 they, with their wives and families, And Edward's and Alice's brother, Asa starter for Illinois. Uncle Edward Doughty has left a record of his life and experiences. According to this account the party reached Chicago on the steamer Columbus, and spent some time there, then preceded on their journey by team and wagon. Here the record says, "The fourth day out of Chicago with our teams we bade farewell to little Richard Wyman, my sister's son, as we saw him lowered into an empty grave buried in a box we happened to have in the wagon, and then passed on to Hudson, about forty miles farther on."

This little Richard Wyman was of course Henry's and Alice's son named no doubt, for the Methodist Minister of the same name on Long Island. Edward Doughty proceeds with his record by stating that when the group reached their destination, they had to chase away wolves before they could put up their dwelling, and he continues with an account of the lack of conveniences and comforts, and tells of the hardships, illness, etc. which they encountered. But he says, "We were cheerfull and sometimes joyfull amidst it all. We learned to depend upon our own resources."

The two families, the Edward and Phoebe Doughty family and the Henry and Alice Coleman family, lived together for some time. Edward's narrative says, "Our friendship was of that positive kind, that we could implicity and confidently rely upon each other in these times of perplexity and trouble. I have often said, "Coleman and his family were worth a farm to me." We could indeed say, "How Pleasant it is for brothers to live together in unity."

Between 1845 and 1850, both the Coleman and Doughty families moved from Hudson into Bloomington, where their families could have better advantages in the schools. Here Henry Coleman engaged in the manufacture of plows, machinery and wagons and prospered. Aunt Phoebe Vassey told me that he became very well-to-do. After some years Edward Doughty again made a move, this time to Wisconsin. (This sounds like a trek of the children of Israel from Egypt to the promised land.) The fact that his brothers Samuel and Asa had settled in Lake City, Minnesota just across the Mississippi river, may have had something to do with this move of Edward's.

Later, Henry and Alice Coleman and their son-in-law, Martin Maxwell and his family followed the Doughtys and settled near him on what was later called Maxwell Prarie. Apparently the Colemans and Doughtys just must live together.

Maxwell Prarie is in Buffalo County, Wisconsin. A History of Buffalo County says: "An event of interest, and not common in a new country, occured in the summer of 1857, which was the settlement of Messrs Coleman and Maxwell in the town of Maxwell with a herd of 200 cattle, also 3 span of mules, and a number of horses. This stock was driven from Illinois and kept on Maxwell Prarie till sold."

Henry Coleman and Martin Maxwell put up good buildings, including a fine house. This house became a real home, the center of all the family activities for years, ad a hospitable retreat for Henry's and Alice's relatives and friends.

Alice's brother Calvin and his wife had both died, and the Colemans had taken two sons to raise. These, with their own nine children, and the relatives and friends so often under their roof, filled the house to overflowing. From this home, two of Henry's and Alice's sons and one of Calvins went forth to the Civil War. From this home sons and daughters were married and went out to found homes of their own. It was in turn, the scene of birth, marriage, and death, but always a home of Christian love.

It made a deep impression on those privileaged to share its comforts and cheer. Sarah Coleman Andrus, who wrote many fine poems, which were published here and there, wrote one in the appreciation of this home and because it embodies the spirit of the place better than anything I can say, I give it here:

Calvin at Buena Vista in the War with Mexico

SLD (30 APR 99)

In Memory of Our Valley Home
Mrs. S. J. Andrus (aunt Sarah, daughter of Henry & Alice)

Oh, home in the valley,
Oh, woodland and stream,
No artist may sketch thee,
No poet may dream
Of the beauty that crowned thee
On midsummer days-
Of friends gathered 'round thee,
Who joined in thy praise.

Yet deep in our hearts lie,
In tints that ne'er fade,
The vision of home life,
Its light and its shade;
The babe in the cradle,
The group at the hearth,
The war drums loud beating,
The boys going forth.

The watching, the waiting,
The hope long deferred,
'Till our boys, into heroes
Come home, battle scarred,
The joyous reunion,
The mirth and good cheer,
The bridal, the farewell,
The pall and the bier.

Oh, home in the valley,
Oh, woodland and stream,
The past seems the present,
The present a dream.
We live the days over.
We feel the warm breath
Of the loved who went down
Through the valley of death.

No more in the desert
Their weary feet roam,
But watching and waiting,
They beckon us home.

Alice Doughty was the one child out of the 13 brothers and sisters who was privileged to care for her mother in her old age. For years Elizabeth (Nelson) Doughty suffered with dropsy and was tenderly cared for by Alice and her family.

Aunt Ella Newcomb told me the circumstances of her grandmother's death Because she could be more comfortable sitting, Great grandmother Doughty often sat up in an easy chair rather lie down in bed. One day she hadgone to sleep sitting, so when Henry Coleman returned from market, he had brough oranges for her as a treat, they being a scarce article in those days. Finding her asleep he placed them in her lap as a pleasant surprise on her awakening. But it happened that this to be her last sleep. It was soon found that she had passed away to a happier awaking in a better world.

She was buried in a little cemetery near the Coleman home on Maxwell Prairie, and many of you have seen her grave - now honored with D.A.R. marker as that of a real daughter of the Revolution.

Elizabeth Nelson Doughty was the ancestor of all you Doughtys.

Alice Coleman's brother Samuel used to say, "I have great respect for such a religion as Alice's." Hers was no stern religion however, she and all her family had a keen sense of humor and their home was usually filled with fun and cheer. One thing we have always remembered of Grandmother Coleman was that she laughed a lot. Yet, how quick to feel another's sorro and to sympathize. She and Henry were regular magnets to people in trouble As one of the distant relatives said years afterward, "Henry and Alice were always so good to everybody." Their kindness must have been fully appreciated, if giving their names is any indication, for there have been so many Henrys and Alices throughout the wide relationship that it has been quite confusing at times.

But after all, it was not so much what they did, but what they were that made them beloved by one and all.

Alice Coleman was an unusually efficient person. Her children used to say she had enough executive ability to be president of the United States. Her quiet management always kept things running smoothly in the house, each child having his share of the work and also in the pleasure.

Henry Coleman died in 1869, in much the same way as Elizabeth Nelson Doughty had gone. One evening after family prayers, the rest of the family stirred about doing a few final nightly tasks, when some one noticed that Henry had not moved from his chair, It was found that he had died of heart failure.

His death was not only a great shock and grief to his wife and children, but to his lifelong friend, the Rev. Edward Doughty. And here I would like to quote from the latter's tribute to Henry. This was not an obituary but a part of Edward's family record written years later. It was headed "Henry Coleman." Uncle Edward says:- -

Subject: Re: Hi, I have enjoyed looking at your web page. I am related toHenry Samson...

The book you are looking for is "Mayflower Families in Progress: Henry Samson of the Mayflower for Four Generations", published by the General Society of Mayflower Descendants. This is a paperback "in Progress" book, meaning that it presents research that is currently ongoing, and the final Five-Generations version will be published in hardback at some point when the research findings are finalized. As it is, it is still a highly useful book with invaluable knowledge and full source citations, and much of the low cost (just $8+S/H) goes to assist the research being conducted to complete the final version of the book.

You can order it through the mail with this order form:
http://www.mayflower.org/fivegen.htm

Sincerely,
Caleb Johnson

A cousin once counted the Minute Men at Lexington that were related to us and came up with quite a number. Any time you want to look it up check the names Nelson, Thayer and Chapin (the maiden name of Josiah Nelson's mother.

Proof from Henry Samson to Henry Nelson comes from HENRY SAMSON of the Mayflower and his Descendants for Four Generations, Published by General Society of Mayflower Descendants 1995, and the research that I did and that was accepted by the DAR proving my line back to Henry Nelson. Both sources are considered authentic.

Dear Richard,

Here's some stuff. I wrote down what is enclosed so I will know what to send later. I will keep sending you material as I process it. My rough drafts are too rough at this time to bother with, but since you seem to be really interested, I would like for you to have a copy of the things I'm putting together for my kids and my sister's family.

You will note that I've enclosed some Dibble family sheets which I would appreciate your updating and returning to me so that my records are current. Please feel free to add anything that you think this side of the family would like to know.

We went out to dinner to celebrate Valentine's Day, and we were well remembered by family and friends. Now I've been working on this stuff for several hours and my head is buzzing. If it weren't for the need of branches on which to hang the family members, I wouldn't bother with dates and places, but, unfortunately, I must try to collect data. Too bad I don't have someone to that so that I can do the fun stuff.

Certain family branches are very hard to gather information from. I am going to put together my history this year and if they don't respond, they won't be included, which, I'm sure won't hurt them a bit since they aren't going to see what they're missing, as if they'd care anyhow. Now that's a paragraph that would upset my grammarian daughter. She's a professional student, lawyer, Army Intelligence, Peace Corps English teacher in Poland right after the Russians left. When she was little, I used to correct her grammar; now she corrects mine.

When I am tired and sit down to write, I tend to ramble and, that said, I shall quit rambling for now.

As ever,
Joyce

Subject: SAR

Dear Richard,

I see no problem to your qualifying for the Sons of the American Revolution. Use my DAR membership number and connect yourself to our common ancestor which would be my gfather Asa and that should do it. The DAR geneological requirements are so stringent that I can't imagine the SAR being fussier.

Hettie and Dad were brother and sister. I have (I think) a copy of Asa's death certificate so you would need Hettie's birth (or death) certificate showing Asa was her father. Hettie's marriage certificate would show she married Birney (necessary to prove your Dibble lineage), Paul's birth (or death) certificate would show them to be his parents. Elsie's birth certificate would show she's Paul's daughter. You would need her marriage certificate to show the change in your lineage and then your own birth certificate should do it.

If you don't have Paul's date and place of birth, I have them here somewhere and can supply them for you to work with. I see absolutely no problem whatsoever.

On Elizabeth Nelson Doughty's grave in WI there is a DAR marker indicating that she was the daughter of a Revolutionary War veteran. If my extablished line isn't good enough you could go back through her which can't be refuted. I have a picture of her grave and the marker. That's how I started. After I found her grave I wrote to the DAR headquarters and asked for people who had joined on her line. They sent me several and I picked the one most closely related and proved my connection to that person.

The Mayflower booklet you would probably have to order from the publisher which I can supply after I get my material out again. After the holiday rush I'm going to convert one whole wall of my bedroom into a family history project and stop packing stuff up and putting it away and then unpacking and getting organized only to have to pack it all up again. That's no way to make headway. It won't do anything for the appearance of what I would like to be a lovely room but there is no where else to spread out. At least it won't be visible from the living room.

For Christmas, which our family celebrated yesterday so that all of us would be together, I gave each of my kids and the older gdaughters a copy of the Wold history. Now I shall completely clear the decks of that material and concentrate on the Doughtys. I can supply my DAR number when I get it out.

Good luck!
Joyce

Subject: Asa's Memorial Day tribute

Hi Richard,

I did get to the cemetery on Memorial to observe the military program for veterans of the assorted wars.

For the first time ever, Asa was recognized with the other veterans in the local newspaper and his name was read at the program at the cemetery. His grave, besides being adorned with flowers had the addition of military medallion topped with an American flag.

There were 9 members of his family there and we all went to the Legion afterward for the dinner.

It's good to feel that he will be commemorated in years to come.

Slow about getting history done. Am a bit more organized,. Asa will be done by summer's end. I shall simply quit revising and call it quits. I've some great new material--a 1900 picture of the Methodist Church they helped build and also a fine picture of the town of White. A cousin is going there this summer and has been directed to try to get a similar picture. I expect that a lot has changed for the worst since that is the fate of most small rural towns.

Leaving for a few days vacation on Monday. Finally, after months of colder than normal weather it is feeling like summer. And our yard is just lovely.

Haven't forgotten you. I'm just slow.

Dear Richard,

Thanks for the humor. Family history is moving very slowly at this time. A cousin has promised me a picture of the church that Asa and relatives founded in White, S.D. It will be nice to include it in his biography. I've done, I suppose about 10 pages and will probably have that many more--maybe. I'm trying to include every scrap of information I have on him, because if I don't do it, nobody else will be able to get the scraps together with as much direct information as I have.

There is supposed to be a ceremony on Memorial Day at his grave site, honoring his participation in the Civil War. The VFW will be installing a little marker on his grave. I hope to attend, but the grave is up a hill rather too steep for me to climb. Not sure how I'm going to handle that. I did get there last summer by driving up on a service road and then walking over on fairly level ground. I wanted a picture of the family headstone which I have always considered a fine appropriate memorial for an outdoorsman. It has a wreath of oak leaves across the top. It will be included in the material I finally send you.

As always, it is getting late. It's the only time I have to sit down at the computer, and by then I'm too tired to work on anything.

As ever,
Joyce

Subject: Re: Edward Doughty

Thanks for writing back so quickly. Here is what I know:

Edward Doughty
born 3-19-1807 in Rockaway, Long Island, NY married 7-11-1829 to Phoebe Smith in South Hemstead, NY died 8-13-1880 in Louisville, WI

He wrote a sort of autobiography, a very interesting and at times humorous paper. Here is the extent of our "evidence". Perhaps he was not actually one of the "founders". He wrote this in about 1880 or so:

"In the year 1847 we sold out in the Hudson Colony, and moved to the city of Bloomington, McLean Co, Illinois for the purpose of better carrying on my wagon business and better school privileges for my children, as we now had seven of our own, and one orphan whose name was Caroline Walkerton, as her parents had died in one week with cholera. We continued to live in Bloomington until it became a city of 7,000 inhabitants, and the seat of the Illinois Wesleyan University, of which I was one to help lay the foundations in the infancy and hope and believe it will grow and enlarge to bless the coming generation."

According to a family historian, Vera Doughty Springer, Edward's descendants were to be permitted to attend the University without charge for the next 100 years, and several of his older sons did take advantage of the free tuition. Edward and his family left for Wisconsin in 1856.

So there you have it. Let me know what you may find. "Founder" may mean that he was a construction worker (!), but the tuition deal seems significant.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Hi, Dick

Your friends in Seoul will know many places for you to visit and three days won't be enough to do it all!!!

I definitely think you'd be interested in the War Memorial. You could spend an entire day there and not see it all, but you can also be selective. I was interested in seeing the sea wall at Inchon where my Third Battalion of the Fifth Marines scaled it from landing craft using wooden ladders. That might not interest you.

You might also like to see Chokyesa Templ, the only major temple lwithin the old city walls. This temple became the headquarters of Chogyejong, the principal sect of Buddhism in Korea.

You might also like to drive north 25 miles to the town of Munsan-ni and the Freedom Gate bridge. My Marine outfit was responsible for the integrity of the UN lines just north of the river and for a short while I had my Command Post in one of the only two remaining houses left in Munsan after the war had gone through there four times. That house is gone, of course, and the town has been rebuilt, but I think the bombed-out bridge is still there, alongside the new one. Your friends may know about it, and if it's a worthwhile trip.

If you're going east, you can follow National Road 31 to Yanggu, visit a prehistoric musem along the way, and get to the foot of Bloody Ridge which is just to the west of Daewoosan and Dosolsan Mountain, the latter bing the western wall of the Punchbowl. It was on the eastern wall of the Punchbowl that I saw most of my combat action and where I was almost taken out of that action by a sniper bullet on one occasion and heavy mortar fire on many others!!! You can drive down into the Punchbowl now, and there is even a small village and a restaurant and another small but interesting War Memorial-museum.

None of this may be of interest to you. It was obviously of interest to me and to Eric when we were there last October.

Love,

Birney

Subject: Re: Hi, Joyce,

Congratulations! It is quite an accomplishment to work out an acceptable lineage for the SAR. As the years pass, what hasn't been verified is going to be almost impossible to prove. Yes, I would like a copy of your lineage. We appreciated your family picture at Christmas. A very fine looking group. I have finished all the text that I'm going to do for now on the Doughty family. Tied it all together just before Christmas. Just about wore myself out but was determined that it would be part of our gift to our children. Made copies for our kids and two grownup granddaughters and my two nieces. Your copy is not put together but I think I have all the pieces but if I don't will make copies. My eyes nearly gave out on me and I got through Christmas with extremely poor vision due to a second type of instant cataract hitting me about Thanksgiving. Instead of deteriorating the lens it put a screen over it. Scared me half to death. Had my first surgery Dec 27. Now I have far, but no near vision with that eye and extremely limited vision with the other. Next surgery is next week. Then I'll have to wait a while for my eyes to stabilize before getting glasses. If my second eye is like my first it will be even harder to see to read and compute. In time I expect my vision to be pretty good.
I declined to run for the board here for the coming year but accepted the position of chairman of the activity committee. Just can't help myself.
Your copy of the history will be in the mail as soon as possible. If I lack something to do I will tackle it with a magnifying glass in one hand. Hopefully, within the next two months.
I've thousands of names with pertinent information that I may eventually get on the tree maker. My drive was to get the information that felt no one else would ever assemble together so it would not be lost to posterity. My reward was a deep feeling of satisfaction. I got Grandfather Asa officially recognized as a Civil War vet this spring so hereafter his grave will be adorned with a flag on Memorial Day and his name read at the local celebration and that makes me feel good also. It's kind of completing my obligation to my ancestors.
Well, I'm home from a meeting and it's time for bed.

Love,
Joyce

Dear Richard,

I send you the best wishes from your cousins from Poland. The best greetings for you, your wife, daughters, mother and aunt Helen. Thank you very much for your letter and impressions from your stay in China. It was really interesting to read that.

As you know I still collect information about our family. I try to make history of our origin from ancient years to present. That is why I kindly ask about information from your side. Please write me some regarding following questions:

- Where do you work now, what are you doing there, and what is you position?
- Does your wife work? If yes, tell me where and what is she doing there?
- Tell me something about your daughters, what kind of school they already finished or where do they study now? What kind of specialization they chose. If they already work please tell me where and what do they do.

Dear Richard, I would like to know something about your mother. How is she doing now? Does she live with you in California?

Please, let me know something about aunt Helen. Is she healthful? Is she active and have something to do?

Dear Richard, good luck for all of you.
I am looking forward to hear from you.

Sincerely yours

Porowska Krystyna

z Jerzym i Tadeuszem

Dear Richard,

Thank you very much for birthday wishes and your letter. I am very glad that you have improved conditions of your work and salary. We wish you everything the best in new job.

I am very glad also that we have the same views in relation to our Great Lord. We also thanks him for everything what he give us in average life. I agree that in the church there are many ways of realizing yourself. You are right that everyone may find and choose something.

Dear Richard, please send me your impressions from trips to churches or other countries. Please, send me information about your wife and daughters; what kind of schools they are already finished; what are they doing now; where do they work; what kind of hobby they have; what kind of profession they choose for themselves. We would like to know very much how your daughters manage themselves in average life.

My son, Jerzy, spend time on scout camp. He is a Representative of Camp Commander. In work he participate on internet course for teachers. After he complete the course he will get the certificate and will be able to teach the internet in schools. He have also his internet web-site. I send you a copy of this site.

The area where they have the camp is beautiful. This place is known from beautiful lakes and forests. It is called - Bory Tucholskie.

In Warsaw we have unusual heats... this summer. Temperatures reach 35-40°C during the noon. In my opinion climate become warmer in only summer and some kind of rain season. My husband, [illegible], and

I spend time slowly and peacefuly like every pensioners.

Please, write us how your mother is doing? What happened new in her life.

Good luck and the best wishes for all of you.

We are looking forward to hear from you.

With Love
